Nixon Will Sell Grains to Russia As Unions Relent

By Frank C. Porter

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5 (UPI).—A surprise deal between the White House and the big maritime unions has paved the way for sales of grain to Russia that could run as high as $185 million, it was learned today.

Such a sale would not only exceed the total of all U.S. exports to the Soviet Union last year—$118 million—but would also top the historic and controversial shipment of $125 million worth of wheat to the Soviet Union in 1964, in winning labor acquiescence to removing the requirement that 50 percent of such shipments be moved in American vessels, the Nixon administration pulled off a coup on several fronts.

• The projected sale to Russia would help reduce the heavy surpluses from this season's bumper crop and firm up prices. The drop in corn from $1.45 a bushel a year ago to about $1.05 today has brought angry protests from farm groups and has become a serious political liability for President Nixon.

• The White House agreement not only puts American growers on a more competitive basis with other major exporters, such as Australia and Canada, but would be of significant help to the critical trade and balance-of-payments situation of this nation.

• American grain traders believe this would be only the first of continuing grain shipments to Russia, which is hard pressed to grow enough feed for its rapidly expanding livestock industry. The sale might also help pave the way for expanded export of other products to the Soviet Union, officials believe.

No American grain has been sold to Russia for the past eight years because of the hang-up over the 50 percent shipping requirement. American shipping charges generally exceed world rates, and the Russians have balked at paying the extra cost ever since the big wheat deal of 1964-65.

In June President Nixon suspended the shipping requirement at the same time that he liberalized trading rules for mainland China. There were loud protests from organized labor at the time, and intimations that the International Longshoremen's Association might refuse to load any grain cargoes destined for Communist nations.

Quid Pro Quo Denied Administration officials said the union leaders had asked nothing in return for finally acquiescing to removal of the shipping preference. They praised the union chiefs' "statesmanship" for putting the interests of the nation first.

But speculation persisted, nonetheless, that some quid pro quo was arranged during the White House parley: the pledge of more vigorous prosecution of Mr. Nixon's (Continued on Page 2, Col. 7)

34 Senators Bid Nixon Bar A-Test, Blast Foes Get High Court Hearing

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5 (UPI).—As conservationist groups awaited Supreme Court action on their appeal to halt tomorrow's Amchitka Island atomic test, 34 senators today asked President Nixon to block the five-megaton, $390-million explosion.

The Supreme Court agreed to give a hearing tomorrow to the arguments of the conservationists, who say that this largest underground blast in U.S. history may destroy marine and bird life and cause earthquakes and tidal waves, even though the explosion will occur 6,000 feet underground.

The blast is scheduled for 2300 GMT.

Meanwhile more politicians, scientists and organizations came out in opposition to the detonation of the bomb—250 times stronger than the one that destroyed Hiroshima in World War II.

There were these developments:

• Led by Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R., Mass., the 34 senators said in a telegram to Mr. Nixon that they were "united in the feeling that no reason proffered thus far justified the hostile act of unleashing nuclear power that is about to take place."

• Three Nobel Prize winners and nine other scientists said there was "a real possibility" that Mr. Nixon made a mistake in approving the test and "he should allow sufficient time for full public and congressional debate."

The scientists included Nobel prize winners Linus Pauling of Stanford University, Harold Urey of the University of California and George Wald of Harvard.

• Eight organizations that carried their long legal battle to the Supreme Court on grounds that the explosion created environmental dangers said in a letter to Mr. Nixon, a letter reproduced as an advertisement occupying a full page in The New York Times, that a substantial part of the scientific community believed the test involves "significant environmental risks."

The senators wrote Mr. Nixon: "The force of the blast will be so great that there is a small though palpable risk of earthquake, tidal wave and radioactive contamination of the ocean."

Family at Blast Site ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Nov. 5 (AP).—The chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, James R. Schlesinger, will have his wife and two children on Amchitka Island with him when the nuclear test is held tomorrow. The family's presence is designed to demonstrate his "high degree of confidence" in the AEC's safety precautions, he says.

Mr. Schlesinger said he was taking his wife and two of his eight children to the island at the invitation of Alaska Gov. William A. Egan, who opposes the test and refused to go himself. The two children are Emily, 9, and Anne, 13.

Others included Adm. Thomas Moorer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and Adm. John S. McCain, the U.S. Pacific commander. Spokesmen said Adm. Moorer will fly to Phnom Penh tomorrow for a look at the military situation in Cambodia.

Heikal Says Die Is Cast Sadat Places Military Under Direct Control

CAIRO, Nov. 5 (UPI).—President Anwar Sadat moved to the headquarters of the high command today to assume direct charge of Egypt's 800,000-man armed forces.

Political sources noted that the late President Nasser made the same move shortly before the war of June, 1967.

Although Mr. Sadat is already supreme commander of the Egyptian forces, his new position will put him in effective, day-to-day control, the sources said.

A military communiqué from War Minister and commander-in-chief Gen. Mohammed Ahmad Sadat late yesterday said Mr. Sadat had decided to "assume his command functions from his headquarters at the high command of the armed forces."

The communiqué said, "The decision was taken in view of the importance of the political and military situation through which the nation is passing at present."

(Political sources in Beirut said Mr. Sadat's move, linked with a series of important simultaneous statements in Egypt, constituted at the least a warning to the world that the Middle East deadlock could not continue.)

They said there was considerable anger in Arab quarters at Israeli Premier Golda Meir's speech last week rejecting Egypt's conditions for a reopening of the Suez Canal.

In view of Mr. Sadat's repeated warnings that the problem must be solved this year by peace or war, moves to bring the crisis to a head were inevitable, the sources added.

Other major developments included:

• The arrival in Cairo of a peace mission of four African heads of state, led by the Organization of African Unity.

War, Peace Decision • A disclosure by Mohammed Hassanien Heikal, editor of the semi-official newspaper Al-Ahram, that Mr. Sadat has already taken a decision on whether to go to war or seek an end to the conflict by peaceful means.

• A three-hour meeting between Mr. Sadat and Egypt's top military commanders.

• The dispatch of three Iraqi emissaries to Arab states to urge a closing of Arab ranks for a confrontation with Israel.

In an article in today's Al-Ahram, Mr. Heikal said Mr. Sadat's warning that the conflict must be resolved this year meant that a decision on how to resolve it must be taken this year.

He added, "If I am not mistaken, the decision has already been taken in line with Egypt's principles and the requirements of its security."

He did not indicate what the decision was.

The African heads of state who flew in tonight were Presidents Leopold Senghor of Senegal and Abdou Diouf of Senegal and Gen. Yakubu Gowon of Nigeria and Joseph Mobutu of Zaïre (formerly Congo-Kinshasa). They have spent three days

Mrs. Gandhi Rejects Any Move To Pull Troops From Border

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5 (AP).—Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi today firmly rejected any move to withdraw Indian troops from the Pakistan border, and declared that India had no intention of withdrawing troops from the border.

She said that after facing Pakistani aggression twice and Chinese aggression once, "I think it is my duty to see that we are not unprepared."

She said that "we don't really intend to withdraw."

She was speaking at a National Press Club luncheon after two days of White House talks with President Nixon.

She said the troop question merely diverted world attention from the real problems of East Pakistan.

On UN observers, she said India was an open society that anyone could examine along the borders.

She said the question was, "How to bring peace to East Bengal (East Pakistan). If you want the 9.5 million refugees to go back, you must ask: Is it safe? Are you able to insure peace?"

She denied that there had been a disagreement with the United States on a political solution, but it was clear that Mr. Nixon had not embraced the Indian point of view that only a separate Bengal state, achieved by a political settlement, could bring peace to India and Asia.

Mrs. Gandhi assailed the Pakistan government for what she termed "genocidal punishment of

As Israel Presses for Planes U.S. Intelligence Says Russia Has Cut Arms Flow to Egypt

By Terence Smith

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5 (NYT).—Soviet shipments of arms and high-performance aircraft to Egypt have dropped off sharply in the last three months, according to American intelligence sources.

The flow of Russian arms, which was extremely heavy in the spring, is reported to have dwindled to a level described by one official as "pitifully low."

The information comes at a time when Israel is pressing the United States to resume the shipments of Phantom and Skyhawk warplanes, shipments that have been suspended since the summer. The United States has been holding back the planes as part of its effort to get negotiations started between Israel and Egypt on an interim peace agreement.

The outbreak in Soviet shipments was first noted by both American and Israeli intelligence in late July, in the wake of the anti-Soviet campaign in the Sudan and the purge of Soviet-oriented officials in Egypt.

The administration's Middle East analysts suspect that the reduction in shipments may be related to those events, which strained Arab-Soviet relations. They concede, however, that the slowdown may simply be of the sort that has occurred cyclically in the past, usually because of Soviet production problems.

"Whatever the cause, the shipments are way off," one official said yesterday. "Practically nothing of consequence has been delivered since the counteroffensive in Sudan."

The slowdown contrasts sharply with the flow in the spring, when jet warplanes and other heavy equipment were being airlifted into Egypt at a record rate. The change was observed by American intelligence and confirmed by the Israelis.

Despite the Israeli government's protests to the contrary, the American officials are convinced that Israel retains military superiority over Egypt, particularly in the air.

From the strategic point of view, the officials said Israel "does not need" additional strike aircraft at this time.

"The Israelis eventually will need additional Phantoms and Skyhawks, to complete the modernization of their air force," one senior planner said, "but for the moment they are not in a position to demand them."

However, the officials are quick to concede that the decision on whether to grant the Israeli request for more planes is a political one that is governed by factors beyond the military balance in the area.

Diplomatic, Military Mission Of Pakistanis Reaches Peking

PEKING, Nov. 5 (Reuters).—A delegation of Pakistani government and military officials headed by former Foreign Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto arrived here today for consultations with Chinese leaders.

Pakistani sources said Mr. Bhutto, leader of the People's party, in West Pakistan, is here as the personal representative of President Mohammed Yahya Khan.

The eight-man delegation, comprising top military leaders and Foreign Ministry officials, was met by Chinese acting Foreign Minister Chi Peng-fei.

Mr. Bhutto, and his delegation began conferring with Premier Chou En-lai almost immediately after their arrival, according to Pakistani sources.

A Pakistani spokesman said the delegation flew to Peking at the invitation of the Chinese government "for consultation on matters of mutual interest."

Diplomats here speculated that the Pakistani visit could concern, among other things, Peking's strategy at the United Nations.

The military participation in the delegation could also mean discussions regarding China's continuing military aid to Pakistan, and possibly stepping up such aid.

When a man buys a BMW he expects something special. With utmost precision. And he is justified to expect this, not just when the car is new—but always. So we have equipped our service stations with the BMW Programmtest. This compact electronic apparatus has the same principle as an electrocardiogram. It measures the car's performance by means of indicator dials and oscillographs. And shows which adjustments are necessary. So the BMW Programmtest guarantees that each BMW always keeps the precision and performance it has when it leaves the factory. And that BMW drivers always keep what they have bought: outstanding cars.

ART

Exhibitions in Paris, London, Rome

Paris

Léger, Grand Palais, Paris 8, to Jan. 10.

Over 350 works covering the whole career of Fernand Léger beginning with some of his earliest paintings (a portrait of his uncle, a typical Norman parish priest reminds one of his rural background) and going through the cubist period to the very repetitious period of the years after the war. There is a certain lightness and unpretentiousness in the cubist style that is later crushed by Léger's socially edifying intentions.

Léger, Espace Pierre Cardin, 3 Avenue Gabriel, Paris 8, to Jan. 3.

Inaugurating his new exhibition rooms in the same building as his theater (the ex-Théâtre des Ambassadeurs), Pierre Cardin is displaying a collection of drawings and gouache sketches for sets and costumes by Léger. Among them those for Darius Milhaud's ballet "La Création du Monde" based on an African theme. Honegger's "Skating Rink," Riel's "David Triumphant" and Milhaud's "Bollivar." Also some gold jewelry designed by Nadia Léger, the painter's wife.

Drawings From the Darmstadt Museum, Cabinet de Dessins, Pavillon de Flore, Louvre, Paris, to Jan. 3.

This selection of 100 drawings from the Darmstadt Museum's collection of over 8,000 contains some works of unusual interest such as an ink drawing by Urs

Graf and a skeleton rider by Rembrandt but mostly the material from the Italian, German, French and Lowland schools is either rather derivative, without being unattractive, or rather boringly competent.

René Char, Musée d'Art Moderne de la Ville de Paris, entrance provisionally on the Quai de New York, Paris 16, to Nov. 29. This exhibition which was organized by the Maeght Foundation is devoted in part to the manuscripts and illustrated editions of books by the poet René Char, and in part to the artists who have illustrated his poetry. Among them: Giacometti, de Staël, Vieira da Silva, Brague, Lam, Brauner, etc. Numerous paintings and drawings by these artists are also shown.

Miró, Galerie Maeght, 14 Rue de Téhéran, Paris 8, paintings to Nov. 12, drawings to Dec. 6. About 100 drawings and paintings (1963-1971) on various sorts of paper show that Miró is consistently producing the sort of work in which an easy humor blends with a free handed aestheticism. He readily uses any kind of material including the Sunday tabloids to paint on. At 78 his entirely characteristic graphic talent is still productive.

London

Martinez Novillo, New Grafton Gallery, 14 Grafton St., London W.1, to Nov. 24.

One of Spain's best-known landscape artists, Martinez Novillo does oils of Castile and the Valencian beaches, work hitherto seldom seen in England. In this first London one-man show, he demonstrates the Spanish tradition of landscape at its rich and fiery best.

James Lloyd, Portal Gallery, 18a Grafton St., Bond St., London W.1, to Nov. 14.

Farmhand, petrolman, gasworks stoker, bus conductor,

A Fernand Léger drawing for "La Création du Monde," among works currently on view at Espace Cardin, Paris.

builder's laborer, lamp-lighter, James Lloyd was 40 before he had the overwhelming urge to paint pictures. These he does with meticulous care, using a kind of personal petit pointillism to portray these places, people and things that he has most closely experienced. His paintings may be naive in technique, but in thought and in composition he has the natural gifts of a master. His work is enchanting.

Rome

Scrittura-Pittura, Nine Roman Artists, Contini, 25 Piazza Mignanelli, Rome, to Nov. 15.

"Writing-Painting" is a timely and poetic show in which Novelli excels. His "Lancia Design" is literally a machine that flings drawings in just that. Drawn in pen and pencil on canvas, it spurs a host of comas, darts, symbols, a forest of little growths toward the upper edge of the picture—minute "evil things" as if from Pandora's box. There is a secret peace and order in the lyrical abandon. A row of canvases, loose, black and white meshes by Bigli, perfectly abstract but elegant, are also intriguing. Baruchello's tiny mechanisms are delicately drawn on wide expanses of pale canvas. Leinardi shows unending juxtapositions of the letter O. Twombly, one of the leading graffiti writers, could have been represented with finer works. Scintano's and Kounellis' "initials" with drips are from these two artists' best periods. Weller has not yet captured children's calligraphy and, so far, uses it only as a decorative device.

Objects of My Affection, Man Ray, Condotti, 88 Via Condotti, Rome, through November.

Man Ray's "Objects of My Affection" become objects of the viewer's affection as well. The famous metronome ticks away at enigmatically as ever; the magical smoking device is ready to take you to Aladdin's cave; a snowstorm has an eye in it and so snow, the leaf of French bread was surely cast in bronze long before Jasper John's beer can. Man Ray's objects of inscrutable fantasy are as classic as Duchamp's. However, recent lithographs add little to the old dada enchantment.

Ben, Castelli, 51 Babuino, Rome, to Nov. 20.

It is surprising that Ben (Vander) has never been shown in Rome before. His hilarious white mottos painted or printed on black are the truths of a grown-up child who writes on the blackboard of art. To wit, "Speak of me Ben." "I have signed plants in 1964." with a real potted plant growing from a shelf off the canvas. Inventions, juxtapositions, Ben's pronouncements, like those of Klein and Manzoni, are among the best that neo dada has to offer.

Alan Davie, Oca, 38 Oca, Rome to Nov. 15.

Alan Davie tells a story similar to Ben's in a different language. He too is a sophisticated innocent. He seems to become more carefree each year, but in these splashy, bright, intentionally awkward gouaches of 1970, also more profound. He is digging up symbols from a far Jungian past, which each of us feels but never knows.

These four exhibitions have one thing in common: They are not explicit. They say with art what cannot be put into words.

Speed of Light

William Lawson's Light Scotch Whisky was first enjoyed over 120 years ago by people who should know more about Scotch than anyone.

The Scots themselves. So it shouldn't surprise you to find that its light and mellow taste goes down splendidly with your friends. Remember they've never had anything like William Lawson's Light Scotch before. Maybe they're just making up for lost time.

DANCE
Paris Festival on New T
With Americans, Indones
By David Stevens
PARIS, Nov. 5 (UPI)—The Paris Dance Festival is taking off in some unaccustomed directions this week and next, both in form and content. Instead of its usual formula of a more-or-less traditional spectacle of ballets in the resplendent confines of the Théâtre des Champs-Élysées, the festival is offering a marathon program of three companies in the relatively remote Théâtre de la Cité Internationale.
And the distance from the central Avenue Montaigne to the peripheral Boulevard Jourdan is hardly more than the cultural gap between the first-night Paris audience (what there was of it) and a program that included a traditional Indonesian group, preceded and followed by two small American companies energetically cultivating their own sectors of the contemporary dance landscape.
The two American troupes—the Viola Farber Dance Company and Twyla Tharp and Dancers—share a prodigious energy and a certain sense of humor that seem to be the common property of many otherwise different American groups.
Miss Farber formed her own troupe, composed here of four women and three men, after several years with Merce Cunningham, to whose influence she has added an element of improvisation that must make some strenuous demands on the imaginations of her colleagues.
First Piece
"Co-op," the first of three pieces—all without music—showed off many facets of the troupe.
Each of the dancers made up and taught to the others a section of this dance, and the dancers all have periods of improvisation, but the overall structure is strictly controlled by Miss Farber—in a firm voice from the sidelines. The result was a kaleidoscopic succession of unexpected poses and movements, interspersed with spoken remarks and Dadaist events. Toward the end, one of the girls came to the front of the stage and called sweetly, "Tom, Tom." Tom was asked to come up and give a spot critique of "Co-op," which indeed he proceeded to do before being cut off by the abrupt ending.
The Farber program began at 6:30 p.m. and was succeeded at about 7:45 by the Sunds Ballet of West Java, which transformed the theater into another world —one of lapidary precision and restraint. The Indonesian dancers presented a cross-section of traditional dances, some in slightly modernized form, deriving from legends and ceremonies, stylized combats and historical tales, the whole accompanied by a native ensemble of percussion and wind instruments.
Some time after 9 the spectatles from the theater to the gallery, a large gymnasium-like hall where Twyla Tharp—a slight, dark-haired, intense young woman—tried to brace them for what they were about

Miss Tharp seems

Morse, Thomas Cole, Thomas Moran, all represented, for the most part, by most uncommonly good examples having a delicacy and occasionally a grandeur too often lost in the efforts of men confronted by the overwhelming vistas of the expanding continent. Mackay then goes on to the 30th century, bringing in figures like Marin, a Chinese, a Hindu, a Jew, O'Keeffe, Joe Jones, George Luks, Benton, Evergood, Demuth, Sheeler. He includes photographers, like Ansel Adams and Edward Weston, anonymous official cameramen for the U.S. Army Corps (one splendid photo shows erosion eating into South Dakota farmland), and even Sen. Barry Goldwater.

Photography is also most spectacularly used in a kind of prologue to the exhibition. The classic great hall, columns and staircase of the Corcoran muse-

"Wilderness" is another. Also directed by Douglas MacAgy, it's one of four exhibitions provided by the endowment under the title "The American Art Heritage" for touring the country as part of the Bicentennial Celebration. It consists of paintings, sculpture, drawings, prints, photographs, films and models depicting the American wilderness as artists have viewed it for a century and a half, including the relatively recent years when man began despoiling it to make a new kind of wilderness.

The show includes the predictable 19th-century names, like Bierstadt, Frederick Church, George Inness, Samuel P. B.

of the friend who realizes his true nature and installs himself as a male secretary, waiting for the novelist to dictate to him. This stilted action is matched by the dialogue, for all three speak as if they were characters in a minor Edwardian novel, as well they might be. There is also a great deal of heavy symbolism, so that even the lighting of a cigarette becomes an act of phallic significance. Trevor Peacock, Tom Baker, and a wonderfully twitzy Gillian Warrall mouth their impossible lines as if they meant them, and Bob Stewart directs at a slow and even plod.

Willis Hall's "The Long and the Short and the Tall," dealing with the plight of a platoon of British soldiers cut off behind many lines during the Japanese advance on Singapore in 1942, opens at the Shaw Theatre on Thursday. It will be the play's first London revival since the original production by Lindsay Anderson at the Royal Court in 1959. Now that stage censorship has been abolished, Willis Hall has taken the opportunity to rewrite the dialogue in a realistic warlike manner.

The British premiere of a modern German play, Heinrich Mann's "The Striders," will be the first production at the young Vic Studio Theatre, opening Tuesday. The play, which concerns the author the Gerhart Hauptmann Prize, concerns two workmen in an underground tunnel who paint pipes a power which they believe service a power sta-

Whether masterly or not, these objects have an easy appeal owing to their material and small size. Until recently, they were the private mania of a few collectors. But all that has changed as doubtless the snuff bottle sale at Christie's in London on Nov. 15 will demonstrate.

The Nov. 15 sale will include objects of a more ordinary type. One suspects that those snuff bottles listed under "the property of a collector" are being sold as part of a weeding out operation—an inevitable process in the development of any collection as the collector's tastes become more sophisticated.

Police said the paintings by 17th-century artist Matteo Perugino were found along with other art works at the home of land surveyor Diego Pisani, 35. They said Pisani was arrested.

The raid came one week after British police found four stolen paintings, including two Fred works, in the baggage deposit of London's Euston Station. Italian-born barman Gian Carlo Mulo, 28, and a 24-year-old woman were arrested in connection with that discovery.

Today's recoveries left only two of the Preti paintings still unaccounted for. Ten were stolen Feb. 25 last year from St. Dominick's Church in Taverna, a village 35 miles west of Crotone.

The change came around 1965. Few people have done as much to foster interest in snuff bottles as Hugh M. Moss of London, the son of Sydney Moss, the famous London Chinese art dealer. When Hugh Moss was a young man with little money to invest, he explored new fields of Far Eastern art only to discover that snuff bottles were very much neglected as collector's items in Europe.

Discrimination was not very wide spread at the time. Buyers were hampered by the lack of a bibliography on the subject. Mr. Moss became so interested in his subject that he launched a magazine called Chinese Snuff Bottles, a daring enterprise that only an Englishman, living in the world's most collection-minded country, could ever

A black and white cartoon illustration of a movie theater lobby. In the background, a man in a dark sailor suit and cap stands near a doorway, looking towards the children. In the foreground, a group of children are running and playing. One boy on the left wears glasses and a dark vest over a light shirt. Next to him is a boy in a light-colored sailor suit. To the right, a boy in a cap and dark vest runs towards the viewer. Further right, a girl with dark hair and a bow runs. In the bottom right corner, a small child in a striped shirt is visible. A movie poster in the background features a sun and the text "NOW SHOWING" and "MATTIE". Other text on the poster includes "WILD WIND", "ACE DAVIES", and "THE NEW". The scene is lively and captures a moment of childhood joy in a classic setting.

Baylor Retires From Lakers

After 14 Years, 23,149 Points

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 5 (AP).—Elgin Baylor of the Los Angeles Lakers announced his retirement from pro basketball today after nine games in his 14th season as a forward in the National Basketball Association.

Baylor only last August had pronounced himself healthy at the age of 37, but had said "this is definitely the last year."

The Lakers' captain had played in only two games last season because of a torn Achilles tendon.

In a career with the Lakers that began in 1958 before the team moved from Minneapolis, the former University of Seattle All-American scored 23,149 points in 846 games and averaged 27.4 points a game. Only two players in the history of the NBA—Wilt Chamberlain and Oscar Robertson—have scored more points and only four have more rebounds than Baylor.

Both of Baylor's knees have had extensive surgery and he is minus a quarter of one of his knees from an operation. No longer mobile, he was reduced to a part-time player this season, averaging 11.3 points in 26 minutes a game.

"I have accepted a position with the Lakers for the next three years," Baylor said. He gave no details of his new duties.

Bruins' Part-Timers Provide Victory Over Blues in NHL

BOSTON, Nov. 5 (AP).—Center Art Boldirev, 23, and wings Reggie Leach, 21, and Garnet Smith, 23, accounted for three goals in part-time duty last night as the Boston Bruins defeated the St. Louis Blues, 6-1, in a National Hockey League game.

on a power play early in the first period.

Leach took a net pass from Bailey and scored his initial goal of the season at 3:15 of the second period before old pro Johnny Bucyk tallied his fifth by splitting the defense at 14:45.

Paul Espinoza, who set an NHL record with 76 goals and 182 points last season, collected his 15th of the current campaign.

McMahon Replaced as Condors' Coach

SPRINGSBURG, Nov. 5 (AP).—Paul McMahon has been replaced as coach of the troubled Butte Condors and replaced by Mark Binstein, also the general manager, the ABA club announced today.

Binstein reportedly has been happy with McMahon's coaching for some time. During the current season, Binstein coached the Condors for a week when McMahon was ill.

Guyck, a 36-year-old wanderer, hiked the count to 4-0 in the fourth minute of the finale and just over a minute later Bailey was credited with his first goal when Boldirev's shot went off his thigh. Leach, set up by his linemates, finished Boston's scoring.

Boston goalie Gerry Cheevers, playing a knee injury and making only his fourth start of the season, lost his shutout bid when Fran St. Marselle converted a rebound with just 20 seconds left.

Red Wings 4, Sabres 4

Danny Lawson tipped in a rebound goal with 7:19 remaining last night to enable Buffalo to surmount a 4-0 deficit and gain a 4-4 tie with Detroit.

McMahon, in the second year a $30,000-a-year, two-year contract will become executive director to Binetstein and will be responsible for community relations programs and scouting.

Lions Have Chance

Columbia has a much better chance to win at Baker Field than Brown has to surprise Cornell at Ithaca today.

Auburn, Georgia, Nebraska and Oklahoma should continue undefeated, the only thing that will disturb them is the players making too many plans for those big showdown games such as Auburn-Georgia, next week; Auburn-Alabama, Nov. 27, and the big one between Oklahoma and Nebraska on Thanksgiving Day.

Georgia might not be able to continue blanking opponents tomorrow since the Orange Blossoms of Florida will be passing most of the time.

Penn State and Michigan can also be expected to remain undefeated as each plays one of its less troublesome opponents.

The Nittany Lions put their big ground rush against Maryland last week, the Wolverines go against Iowa, which has won only one game, and that was a surprise.

leader in the sack-line-quarterback derby at midseason in the National Football Conference is neither of the well known groups from Minnesota or Los Angeles. It is the former pacifist bloc from San Francisco, the 49ers.

Yes, John Brodie's team is playing defense—and well. In seven games, the 49ers have dumped quarterbacks ranging in talent from Tom Green to Jim Plunkett to Pete Liska 29 times. In the entire 14-game season last year they managed only 30 sacks.

Sunday, the 49er front four of Tommy Eart, Charlie Krueger, Earl Edwards and Cedric Hardaway swaggared Matt Coughlin Stadium to show how they compare with the resident NFC tough guys, the Vikings, who allegedly cleared out the entire northland and made it safe for 160 yards last week against New England.

With the addition of Vic Warrington to complement Ken Willard, the 49er offense is more balanced. Willard is sixth among NFC rushers, with 438 yards, Washington ninth with 377. Washington is classified as a rookie, although he played three years in Canada after leaving the University of Wyoming.

Another 49er with problems is punt returner Bruce Taylor, who led the NFC in his specialty as a rookie last year. Currently he is 13th, with a 4.7-yard average for his returns.

They're kicking away from me, putting the ball out of bounds and kicking high," he said. "When the ball hangs in DALLAS, Nov. 5 (UPI)—The Dallas Cowboys have put place-kicker Mike Clark on the taxi squad and activated Austrian soccer-style kicker Tony Fritsch.

Clark missed three field goals from 25 to 42 yards Sunday in the Cowboys' 23-19 loss to the Chicago Bears.

Fritsch, who kicked three field goals in five attempts in preseason games, had been on the taxi squad since the beginning of the regular season. He had expressed dissatisfaction with his inactivity and had asked the Cowboy management for transportation money to go home to Austria.

Cowboy officials talked Fritsch out of leaving.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—The second half of the National Football League will start on Sunday with the Pittsburgh Steelers favored by one point to win a third straight defeat on the Cleveland Browns.

The Steelers are one game behind the Browns in the Central Division of the American Conference. Last week the Browns defeated the Atlanta Falcons 24-10, easily defeating the Steelers, 34-31. But the Browns have gone into a slump since beating Cincinnati in the last minute three weeks ago. Two weeks ago they were upset by Denver in a 27-0 rout.

They have a preview of all the games with the lost-lid records in parentheses, as seen by William N. Wallace of The New York Times:

SAN DIEGO (3-4-0) at N.Y. be scored in this game. The Vikings remember well their 17-14 loss to the 49ers in last year's playoff. Betting choice: Vikings by 4.

DALLAS (4-3-0) at ST. LOUIS (3-4-0)—Ralph Neely, the All-Pro tackle, broke his leg in a motorcycle mishap to add to the Cowboy woes. Bob Hayes is also out and Roger Staubach will be the quarterback. The game has something left, and do well against Dallas. Betting choice: Cowboys by 6.

GREEN BAY (2-4-1) at CHICAGO (5-3-0)—The Bears' surprising success is largely due to the superb performance of a player and inspiring force. The Packers' fine rookie, John Brockington, is averaging 5 1/2 yards a carry. Betting choice: Bears by 4.

GIANTS (2-5-0)—The Chargers scored 49 points on the Jets last Sunday. It's November and the Giants are playing their best personnel at last. Betting choice: Chargers by 3 points.

KANSAS CITY (3-1-1) at N.Y. Giants (2-5-0)—City Taylor scored nine times the last time they played two years ago. He might try for the league record, six touchdowns, against the wounded Chiefs this time. Betting choice: Chiefs by 14.

CLEVELAND (4-3-0) at Pittsburgh (3-4-0)—The Browns will work on the Steelers' best cornerbacks, Lee Calahan and John Brown. Terry Bradshaw is getting better. If the Steelers win this one, they could go on to their first division title. Betting choice: Steelers by 1.

BUFFALO (0-7-0) at Miami (2-4-0)—The Bills are beat up and will shift quarterbacks, from Dennis Shaw to James Harris, for this one. The Dolphins may play without Jim Clark, their star runner, but it is not sure. Betting choice: Dolphins by 17.

HOUSTON (1-5-1) at New England (2-5-0)—Rookie quarterbacks and old friends Dan Fouts and Jim Plunkett feature

PHILADELPHIA (2-5-0) AT WASHINGTON (1-6-1-0)—The Redskins will give the Redskins some problems, but an upset seems out of reach. Roy Jefferson of the 'Skins is due for a big game. Betting choice: Redskins by 14.

ATLANTA (3-3-1) AT CINCINNATI (1-6-0)—After missing four games with a shoulder separation, Virgil Carter returns as Bengals' passer. They have lost star h.b. Dick Shuler, has done well as the replacement for injured Bob Berry, the Falcon quarterback. Betting choice: Falcons by 7.

DETROIT (2-4-1) AT DENVER (2-4-1)—The Broncos have lost Rich Jackson, All-Pro defensive end, to knee surgery. The Lions, with Mel Farr back, will press because they cannot afford an Oakland loss. Betting choice: Lions by 6.

OKLAHOMA (5-1-1) AT NEW ORLEANS (2-4-1)—Ron Mix has replaced Bob Brown at tackle for the Raiders. Brown, an All-Pro, underwent surgery. The Saints' owner, John Mecom, is going to up and fire everybody one of these days. Betting choice: Raiders by 13.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5 (AP)—The City Planning Commission unanimously took the first step yesterday toward the acquisition and renovation of Yankee Stadium to keep the New York Yankees as a home baseball team.

The seven-member commission voted to amend the 1970-71 capital budget to provide $3.25 million as a "down payment" to acquire the 34-year-old "House That Ruth Built."

The New York Giants' National Football League club already has announced plans to move to a new facility in the Hackensack Meadowlands of New Jersey for the 1975 season.
